

Yak-4

If you think you have reached the ultimate in control-line then why not try a twin ? This stable replica of a famous Russian intruder for two 2.5 - 3.5c.c. motors, with its ability to remain airborne on one engine, makes an excellent introduction to 'multis.' Models of this type are not recommended for beginners, but the two-sheet plans can be easily followed by anyone with some practical experience of building control-liners by Keith Taylor.

Model Aircraft Magazine May 1961